Authorization to Move Checking Account

A Tip for Closing Your Old Checking Account -

If you have recently written checks on your old checking account, leave a sufficient balance in that account to cover any outstanding checks. A good rule of thumb: Don't close the old checking account until all of your outstanding checks have cleared and there has been no activity in the account for 30 consecutive days.

1. Enter the information of your current financial institution, the date you want the account closed, the Social Security number on the account, and any other names that appear on the account.
2. Check the blank indicating what your financial institution should do with your remaining funds.
3. Enter your address, sign the form, have any other individuals on the account sign, if necessary and enter the date.
4. Make copies of this form for each financial institution where you have a checking account.
