

Life is a series of unplanned events that we can rarely control. Loved ones will pass, marriages may end, careers might change—these life-altering events do happen; it's knowing how to properly handle these types of situations that makes all the difference.

With the U.S. Labor Department reporting the current unemployment rates at historical highs, Americans are becoming more vulnerable to job loss and other potential life crisis. Have you stopped to consider how the natural transitions that you are currently faced with or may face in the future will impact your financial planning needs?

At different points in your life, you may need a little extra guidance. Our experienced team of financial professionals at Northeast Planning Associates, Inc. can help you better navigate life's twists and turns. Although you may not be able to control every situation, you can find a positive way to handle them. Working closely with a financial planner is one of the best ways to cope with the best and the worst of life.

Listed below are some of the benefits you receive from teaming with a financial planning professional:

Objective Perspective – In times of grief or tension, it is typical to feel burdened by financial pressures. Before you act, consult with us to get an independent, external perspective.

Reinforcement - No matter what life hands you, we can show you where you are in achieving your long-term plan. We will closely monitor your progress to ensure you are on the right track to obtaining your financial vision.

Customization- If you experience a family death, career change, etc., we will review your financial plan and make suggestions or adjustments to keep you on course.

Ultimately, the way you envision the rest of your life might change unexpectedly in a matter of seconds. Whether you plan to care for loved ones, travel the world, or pursue a new career path, you should be comfortable in knowing that your financial plan has the versatility and structure to support you, in any situation.
