PLAQUEMINE, La.— Dow Louisiana Federal Credit Union (DLFCU) is bringing music into the lives of area residents. DLFCU was one of the featured sponsors for a special performance from The Baton Rouge Symphony Orchestra (BRSO) earlier this month. Famous American violinist Mark O'Connor joined violist Gillian Gallagher and cellist Mike Block as the Appalachia Waltz Trio in a summertime special event at as part of the Historic Plaquemine Performing Arts Series. The concert was held at St. John the Evangelist Church, where Father Cleo Milano presides.

"For me, contributing time, talent and money to organizations such as the Baton Rouge Symphony Orchestra is simply another part of giving back to the community," said DLFCU President and CEO Jeff Hendrickson. Hendrickson's concept of contributing and giving back to the community is central to the vision of philanthropy shared by the entire staff of DLFCU.

"We have been fortunate enough to grow substantially over our 36-year history," Hendrickson said. "We have nearly 100 employees, four locations, and more than 20,000 members. We help people attain their aspirations by providing solutions for buying a house, raising families, sending kids to school, advancing education, planning for retirement, and much more. We help people make their lives better."

Community involvement is nothing new for the credit union. In addition to supporting the BRSO, the credit union sponsors The Baton Rouge Little Theater, United Way, OLOL Children's Hospital, Habitat for Humanity, HIV/Aids Crisis Fund, Baton Rouge Ballet Theater and the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation. DLFCU staff members also contribute substantially to Junior Achievement, and other organizations and events.

"We understand that getting out in the community and helping other people provides returns for DLFCU. People get to know us, they like what we are about, and they decide they want to do business with us," he said. "And that is where the missions of DLFCU and the BRSO intersect--in that space where we are all working to enrich lives."
